FIGHTING IN SIEGFRIED LINE OUTPOSTS

Americans Near Aachen

AMERICAN ARMOURED AND INFANTRY FORCES INSIDE GERMANY HAVE FOUGHT THEIR WAY INTO THE OUTPOSTS OF THE SIEGFRIED LINE, AND HAVE CONSOLIDATED THEIR POSITIONS ON HEIGHTS OVERLOOKING AACHEN.

According to Associated Press, the Americans beat back a counter-attack before consolidating their strong-points.

Earlier the German News Agency announced that the U.S. forces had captured an outpost of the Siegfried Line to the south of Aachen. This German city is now seriously threatened, it is reported. Allied troops are only a few miles away.

Elements of the American 1st Army yesterday crossed the border from Luxembourg into Germany at a point 65 miles below Aachen, said New York radio early this morning.

The Siegfried Line was heavily shelled yesterday by artillery, after it had been again bombed from the air.

REUTER, A.P. AND P.A.

The first town captured in Germany, it was disclosed last night, was Roetgen, just inside the Reich frontier, in the Aachen region, where the first penetration into Germany was made.

The German News Agency, announcing that east of Verviers (below Aachen) the Americans went over to the offensive on a broad front, stated that after a battle which raged with the greatest violence for many hours, the Americans captured an advanced fortification of the Siegfried Line.

A counter-attack by Panzer Grenadiers, the Agency claimed, prevented the Allies from driving on further east from this new base.

"German mobile batteries of heaviest calibre were rushed up, and, together with many mortars, subjected the fortification to a shelling which deprived the Americans of all freedom of movement."

LINE SHELLED

Massed artillery and tanks poured a devastating fire on the fortifications for more than two hours. The Germans failed to respond. Either their guns were knocked out or they had withdrawn after their positions were exposed to the Allied forces occupying positions on the commanding Luxembourg hills.

Tanks crept up, but failed to draw any fire. Two hamlets in the fortifications were set on fire by the deluge of shells. Near one mortars ripped a big German barracks, leaving gaping holes.

An A.P. correspondent with the 1st U.S. Army, in a delayed message from Roetgen, states:

"American tanks and infantry—the first to cross the German frontier—broke quickly through the primary defences in the Roetgen area, and are now assaulting anti-tank obstacles and pillboxes just beyond the town.

"American 105 m.m. self-propelled guns are being used in support of this attack.

"The initial German opposition was mostly machine-gun and rifle fire. Resistance was less than expected."

PROBING FORWARD

The German Overseas News Agency, reporting the presence of Allied troops on German territory, stated last night:—

"A few American advance units and reconnaissance troops are slowly feeling their way forward in the Eupen-Malmedy area towards the Western Wall.

"Berlin military circles emphasise that the Western Wall is not situated directly on the Reich borders, but is east of it. Therefore, it is very possible that at some places the operations are spreading to German territory."

A German war reporter, broadcasting later, said:—

"Massed Allied tank formations are drawn up along a 250-mile front ready to strike."

He also declared that General Eisenhower, "who is about to redouble the big offensive on the ground and in the air, has ready huge bomber and fighter fleets."

Allied air forces yesterday continued their heavy attacks on fortifications in the Siegfried Line. Forts and pillboxes were bombed all day.

Behind the Siegfried Line, in the Province of Baden, road and railway traffic was also attacked.

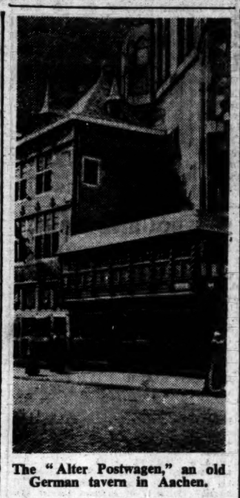

Rhine shipping has been suspended after many barges had been shot up and sunk. Many Allied planes switch off their engines at high altitude, glide noiselessly down, open fire suddenly, and then roar off again.

Heavy fighting continued yesterday on the 3rd Army front along the river Moselle. New crossings were made, and all the bridgeheads are being developed in face of grim opposition.

The new crossings were forced between Metz and Toul, and north of Metz the Germans were cleared from that part of Thionville on the west side of the river.

A large number of Germans—unofficially estimated at 40,000 strong—has been cut off by the link-up in force between the 3rd and 7th Armies. The main forces established a firm junction at Chatillon-sur-Seine, 40 miles north-west of Dijon. The Germans in this area retreated eastward.

War Reporter Describes Crossing Of Frontier

ROBERT REUBEN, Reuter's front-line correspondent, who has travelled the whole way from Cherbourg with the American 1st Army, writing from the German village of Roetgen, 7½ miles beyond Eupen, states:—

American tanks, which on Tuesday swept across the border into this almost deserted township some 7½ miles east of Eupen, amid a blaze of small arms fire, are now tackling more formidable German defences.

As the tanks rumbled into Germany they found only a handful of citizens. This is the first German village to be captured in the invasion, and it was not hard. Only a handful of people remained during the battle for the township.

I reached Roetgen yesterday 15 minutes after the first American tanks entered the village at 4.50 p.m.

By the time I entered the village the tanks were pouring shells into German installations in the hills behind.

Approaching the German border, the Americans ran into a series of road blocks, such as trees blown up with dynamite and laid across the highway.

At the border the Americans were met chiefly with machine-gun and rifle fire, and it was through this that they fought their way into Roetgen—not without casualties.

The crossing into Germany was grim and undramatic warfare, with no flag-waving and lots of shooting.

Sniper activity was plentiful, but the German forces retreated, and in one bomb crater on the road leading out of Roetgen they mounted machine-gun nests, and fired away in a desperate rearguard action.

British Drive On Beyond Albert Canal

FURTHER progress has been made beyond the Albert Canal by General Dempsey's 2nd British Army.

Stiff resistance is being encountered.

Although there has not yet been any link-up between the British forces in the two bridgeheads across the canal, a junction between 2nd Army troops and the Americans appears imminent, states Reuter. Security "silence" is being maintained by the Allies.

The battle of the Albert Canal has been won quickly and decisively, adds Reuter. There are still "pockets" here and there, which British patrols are mopping-up. There is nothing to suggest that there are prepared defences in any depth or strength on the Meuse. There are 88 mm.s dotted along the northern bank, and machine-guns and "Spandaus" cover most of the main routes, but these are routine, static defences.

Military Traffic For The Siegfried Line Bombed

THE German cities of Frankfurt and Stuttgart were the main objectives of aircraft of R.A.F. Bomber Command on Monday.

A British Air Ministry communiqué stated that the railway yard at Frankfurt was known to be congested with military traffic on its way to the Siegfried Line, and a concentrated attack was made on it, as well as on adjacent industrial areas.

A simultaneous attack was made on Stuttgart, a most important centre of engineering and aircraft component works, where large fires were left burning after accurate bombing of previously undevastated areas.

Berlin was also bombed, and from these operations 25 aircraft are missing.

Day photographs, the report added, of Darmstadt show that almost the entire city was devastated in the attack on the night of Septemoer 11th.

The German communiqué said that ferror attacks were made on Frankfurt-on-Main, Mainz and Stuttgart, and that, in addition, bombs were dropped on Wiesbaden and Berlin. Fighters and A.A. guns of the Luftwaffe and the Navy accounted for 139 Allied planes, including 107 four-engined bombers.

The report also spoke of other terror attacks, in which major damage in residential districts was caused, particularly in Muenster and Munich.

Violations of Swiss neutrality by both Germany and the Allies were alleged by Swiss Radio last night, according to Associated Press. Shells fired by a German battery fell on Swiss soil, causing slight injuries to Swiss citizens, and Swiss air space was violated again by "several planes of American and unknown nationality," it declared.

Reuter's special correspondent at Allied Mediterranean Headquarters said that heavy bombers based in Italy struck deep into south-east Germany and Poland yesterday. Oil refineries at Odertal, 75 miles south-west of Breslau, and Oswiecim, near Cracow, were attacked. Other bombers attacked the Avisio viaduct and two railway bridges on the Brenner line, between Trento and Bolzano, and strafed targets behind the Gothic Line, where rail bridges near Milan, Genoa and Mantua were damaged.

About 500 Allied aircraft flew over territory west of the Danube yesterday morning. German Radio said. At the same time a fairly strong formation penetrated the Hungarian air space from the north-east.

For over an hour early last night R.A.F. heavy bombers were streaming out across the east coast of Britain, the Press Association stated. They headed south-east in strong formations towards the Continent.

Stiff Defence Of Gothic Line

FIFTH ARMY troops, driving into the heart of the Gothic Line, were yesterday only four miles from the Puta Pass, on the main Florence-Bologna road over the crest of the Apennines, says Reuter.

The pass leads straight down to the Lombardy Plain, and, it is stated, is more heavily defended than was Cassino.

American forces advancing on the pass through Poggia Della Dugana and Langnano found the way heavily mined, and had to face heavy artillery fire. Other Fifth Army forces are within 2½ miles of the pass through Vernio to the plain.

The drive north from Florence has covered 18 miles through heavily wooded, tortuous mountain defences.

To the west, Fifth Army forces have reached the vicinity of San Ippolito and have come up against the fringes of the Gothic Line defences. On the coast another advance of three miles has carried them to the Berlamaca Canal, on the outskirts of Viareggio, 14 miles north-west of Pisa.

500 Internees Freed From Vittel

Five hundred Americans, most of them women, have been liberated from the German internment camp at Vittel, 18 miles south of Neufchateau. The internees also include some Britons.—(A.P.)

"Surrender" Call To Channel Islands

RED CROSS OFFER TO FRANCE

THE Irish Red Cross Committee have learned from Monsieur George Mathieu, Honorary Secretary of the Emergency Committee in London of the French Red Cross, at present in Dublin, that hospital accommodation and personnel therefor, as well as medical supplies, are among the greatest needs of the French population. As a first step the Irish Red Cross Committee have offered to staff, maintain and equip a hospital of 100 beds in any area of France designated by the French Red Cross. The French Red Cross have accepted the offer, and have expressed the desire that it should become effective as soon as the area designated has been restored to civilian control. The Irish Red Cross have also offered to institute special measures for the care and nourishment of children.

9th U.S. Army In France

THE 9th U.S. Army, commanded by Lieut.-General William H. Simpson, is announced as being in the field in France.

This makes a total of six Allied armies closing in on Germany from the West.

19 Lives Lost in Fire.—A woman cooking dinner accidentally started a fire, as a result of which 19 people lost their lives, 48 were injured, and 200 houses destroyed in the village of Kom el Hamid, in the Girga Province of Upper Egypt.—(Reuter.)

Rumania To Compensate Russia For War Damage

THE terms of armistice signed yesterday in Moscow between Russia, Britain and the United States and Rumania provide that Rumania will hand to the Soviet Union 300,000,000 American dollars worth (about £75,000,000) of goods over a period of six years as compensation for the damage suffered by the Soviet Union.

This payment does not represent the entire damage, it having been taken into consideration that Rumania has not merely left the war, but has declared war on, and is waging war against, Germany and Hungary.

Rumania also will pay for damages suffered by other Allied nations and their citizens in Rumania during the war, the sum to be fixed later.

The State frontier between the U.S.S.R. and Rumania, established by the Soviet-Rumanian Agreement of June 28th, 1940, is restored; all racial and other discriminating laws in Rumania are to be repealed; and all Allied property in Rumania will be restored.

The Allied Governments consider the decisions of the Vienna Award as not valid, and agree that Translyvania, either all or the greater part of it, should be returned to Rumania.

The Soviet Government agrees that Soviet troops for that purpose should take part, together with Rumanian troops, in operations against Germany and Hungary.

Rumania will wage war on the side of the Allied Powers against Germany and Hungary for the restoration of her independence and sovereignty, for which purpose she is putting in the field at least 12 infantry divisions with reinforcements.

Steps will be taken by Rumania to disarm and intern all the armed forces of Germany and Hungary on Rumanian territory and to intern nationals of both Powers.

Rumania will hand over, as trophies, to the Allied-Soviet High Command all the military supplies and armaments of Germany and of her satellites at present on Rumanian territory, including the naval units of Germany and her satellites at present in Rumanian waters.

The Rumanian Government must provide regularly the funds in Rumanian currency required by the Allied-Soviet High Command for execution of its functions, and also place at its disposal industrial and transport undertakings.

M. Lucretiu Patrascanu, Rumanian Minister of State, when asked about the fate of Marshal Antonescu, said yesterday: "He will be tried—either by a Rumanian or an international tribunal."

Interviewed after the signing of the armistice, the Minister said: "In view of the situation I cannot be discontented."

Patrascanu said it would be necessary for Rumania in future to have "a very close connection" with the Soviet Union.

M. Molotov, Sir Archibald Clerk-Kerr, the British Ambassador; Mr. Averell Harriman, the U.S.A. Ambassador, and all taking part in the talks were present at the signing of the armistice. Altogether there were three four-cornered meetings to settle the armistice, totalling some 15 hours.—(Reuter.)

POST-WAR AIR PLANNING FOR EIRE

ALIVE to the potentialities of post-war aviation in this country, the Department of Industry and Commerce is, it is understood, preparing plans designed to provide the most-up-to-date services necessary for the operation of modern air transport.

A mass of information on every site so far used as a landing-ground by aircraft has been accumulated. Architectural and engineering blueprints for the transformation of Rineanna into one of the world's best flying-boat and landing bases are in course of preparation by the Board of Works. At Dublin Airport, hard-surface runways are being laid down. Cork and several other sites have been officially surveyed with a view to the possible establishment of airfields. Information at the Department's disposal is being revised constantly, because of the rapid development in aircraft design and performance.

RINEANNA

At Rineanna several broad concrete runways are now being completed, and, should aerial transport developments warrant it, these may be extended still further. There, when building materials and electrical equipment again become available in sufficient quantities, vast hangars and extensive terminal buildings are to be erected. Meanwhile temporary buildings, large in themselves, will be used. Radio, meteorological and air-traffic services to be housed in these buildings will be of the most modern. Considerable accommodation will be provided for passengers embarking and disembarking at the base. Work, which will be begun in the post-war period, will extend over roughly three years; will provide employment for many Irish workers and technicians, and will be financed by the State. Extensive dredging operations are also to be carried out to provide first-class water operational area. When completed, the base will be capable of servicing the world's largest aircraft.

Considerable thought to the problems of post-war aviation is also being given by the directors of Aer Lingus, Teoranta. Plans for expanding their services from purely cross-Channel work to trans-Atlantic connecting services and European air lines are already far advanced. The question of the establishment of internal airlines is regularly under review, but it appears that unless some major development in aircraft design is evolved to reduce operational costs, the likelihood of establishing an internal network of airlines in this country for some time to come seems remote.

SHUTTLE SERVICES

Although it is not now possible to visualise the conditions that will operate when peace comes, it is believed that passengers and air-freight arriving at Rineanna will be serviced by smaller type aircraft, which will operate shuttle-services between this country, England and the Continent. It is not unlikely that air-lines will operate on a competitive basis and will be provided by, say, British, American, Irish and other services.

Despite the tremendous development in aerial transport since the war's outbreak, it is unlikely that Rineanna will lose its place as one of the world's key airports. For example, fuel consumption is now, if anything, higher per horse power generated than formerly, and as petrol weighs, roughly, 8 lbs. per gallon, and a four-engined craft uses, very roughly, one gallon per mile flown, the importance of reducing fuel load is important for the economic running of air-lines.

An aircraft, to continue its Atlantic flight to London or Southampton, instead of stopping at Rineanna, would have to take on board an additional 2,400 lb. (over one ton) of fuel at its American base. Stopping at Rineanna means that an additional 2,400 lb. of payload (passengers, freight or mail) can be carried—a big consideration.

Traders' Protest To Mr. Lemass

The Retail Grocery, Dairy and Allied Traders' Association has sent a protest to the Minister for Supplies, Mr. Lemass, regarding the reduction in the retail price of oatmeal. They complain that this season's oatmeal has not yet come on the market, and that the new retail price of 5s. 6d. per stone must now apply to stocks for which the retailer paid as much as 6s. 4½d. per stone.

Red Army's Three Thrusts On 500-Mile Front

NEWS FROM THE EASTERN FRONT LAST NIGHT SUGGESTED THAT THE RED ARMY, AFTER A PERIOD OF REGROUPING, HAS LAUNCHED THE EXPECTED SEPTEMBER OFFENSIVE.

Three powerful thrusts towards Germany are, apparently, taking place on a 500-mile front from East Prussia to the Danube.

South of the great waterway, another Soviet army has, according to Berlin, entered Greece from Bulgaria.

The most significant single success is the Germans' loss of Lomza, which was one of the most important of the fortresses forming the so-called "Steel Line" guarding the southern border of East Prussia.

Last night's Soviet communiqué reported that:

The 1st Polish Army is fighting on the approaches to Praga, eastern suburb of Warsaw;

Soviet troops have reached the Czechoslovak-Polish frontier;

South of Rzeszow they captured the town and railway station of Krosno, as well as 100 other inhabited localities;

In North-Western Rumania other troops captured Campu-Lung, an important German-Hungarian strong-point in a pass through the Carpathians.

The capture by the 2nd White Russian Army of Lomza, "an important German defence base on the River Narew," was announced in an Order of the Day by Marshal Stalin and in the German communiqué.

On this sector crack German troops have been forced back to within 20 miles of the frontier in some of the most bitter and bloody fighting of this summer.

WARSAW FIGHTING

Berlin last night reported that a powerful Soviet tank force had driven a wedge into the German positions north-east of Warsaw. Around Warsaw General Bor, Polish Commander-in-Chief in the capital, reported: "The Polish defence is already feeling the effect of operations now going on along the Warsaw front." He also said that the Germans are speeding up their reported withdrawal from the east bank of the Vistula.

In the centre of the 500-mile front German despatches say that General Petrov's 4th Ukrainian Army Group is driving forward in tough mountain fighting between the San River and the crest of the Central Carpathians.

In the south Marshal Malinovsky's tanks, after crossing the Transylvanian Alps, are sweeping through the Central European plain within a short distance of the Hungarian border.

The German commentator, Colonel von Hammer, reported that units of the Soviet 6th Tank Army are fighting on the north bank of the Mierisch (Maros) River—the great stream flowing west from the mountains to link up with a tributary of the Danube into the Hungarian plain.

GREECE ENTERED

The commentator said that spearheads of the 3rd Ukrainian front have crossed the Eastern Rhodope Mountains, and are descending into Thrace. The Rhodope Mountains form the frontier between Bulgaria and Greece.

Moscow disclosed that the great double drive through the Balkans, which liquidated 250,000 German troops, and already has approached Hungary and reached Greece, is under the supreme command of General Timoshenko.

Marshal Tito, in a special communiqué broadcast by the Free Yugo-Slav Radio, said: "In the offensive to the north our units captured Negotin, and, with their left wing, are in contact with the troops of the Red Army."

The German Overseas News Agency last night stated that the Red Army has entered Yugo-Slavia. "Soviet advanced units from Turnu Severin have crossed the Danube and entered the Serbian town of Kladovo, where they met stiff resistance, and were thrown back across the river," the Agency said. Kladovo is in Yugo-Slavia, directly opposite Turnu Severin, below the "Iron Gates" on the Danube, which the Russians took last week—(Reuter.)

North Needs 97,500 Houses

The interim report of the Northern Ireland Planning Advisory Board states that the province needs 97,501 new houses and that 230,000 require repairs. The needs are detailed as follows:—Belfast, 23,591; Derry, 3,828; Newry, 1,042; Co. Tyrone, 14,187; Antrim, 11,928; Down, 10,664; Derry, 7,645; Fermanagh, 6,943; Armagh, 5,705.

The report recommends the provision of temporary housing, and urges the use of bombed sites where services already were available. In the case of Belfast, it is pointed out that many of these sites will require re-development, and on account of the existing street pattern, the removal of some houses already standing may be necessary. An extension of the law relating to slum clearance to enable this to be done on a large scale, instead of demolishing only individual houses is urged, as well as the planning of an adequate labour force to cope with the housing problem generally.

Three Victims of Lorry Crash

Two men were killed and three injured, late on Tuesday night, when two lorries collided on the main Lurgan-Portadown road, about midway between the two towns. Those killed are: William Devlin, 27 Earl Haig Park, Belfast, aged 18½, driver, and William Duncan, 18 Chesham Crest, Belfast, salesman, aged 53.

Robert Bell, Eversleigh street, Belfast, who was injured, died yesterday evening, and the other injured are: James Wilson, Ballyleany, Richhill, and Samuel Gillis, Marlacoo, Portadown, slightly. They are detained in Lurgan Hospital, and their condition early this morning was stated to be fair.

William Loney, Mullalish, Richhill, who was also a passenger, escaped with very slight injuries.

Anti-V.D. Campaign Suggested

Mullingar Trades Council yesterday passed resolution viewing with grave concern the article in the Irish Times on V.D. in Westmeath, inasmuch as it implied that V.D. in Westmeath was a common, everyday disease.

The resolution called on the Department of Local Government and Public Health and Westmeath County M.O.H. to publish the full facts concerning the V.D. situation in Westmeath, and to give particulars concerning the V.D. clinic in the county. Further, if the statement be true, to take such steps as will be necessary to combat and eradicate the disease; to start an anti-V.D. campaign by the publication of pamphlets on V.D. and its danger and complications, and on that long neglected science, sex hygiene.

The mover of the resolution said that the article caused a great stir among all sections of the community. There were people, he said, who discredited the existence of such a disease in Ireland, let alone anywhere in Westmeath. It was like dropping a hawk amongst a flock of chickens, for it caused such consternation. Until the article was published, few were aware that there was a V.D. clinic in Mullingar.

"SPLENDID PROGRESS" AT QUEBEC

REUTER'S Special Correspondent in Quebec said last night that the Churchill-Roosevelt conference is moving quickly towards the selection of a master plan to bring Japan's defeat in the shortest possible time. In all probability, the plan will be adopted by the week-end. Marshal Stalin, it is learned authoritatively, is being kept well informed of the progress made.

According to an official spokesman, it is possible that Mr. Churchill, the President and Marshal Stalin may hold another meeting.

It was stated authoritatively that there is no question of appointing an "Eisenhower of the Pacific" at this stage, since the choice of a Supreme Commander will depend on which of three plans is approved.

Mr. Stephen Early, the White House Secretary, said yesterday that President Roosevelt expects to finish his share of the conference this week-end. Mr. Early said "splendid" progress had been made. "This conference," he said, "is to get the best we can out of the combined British and United States war efforts in the Pacific and Europe. We are co-ordinating our efforts with those of our Allies, particularly with the Chinese and Russians."

Officials said that they did not know whether South Africa would participate in the conference, but that Australian and New Zealand representatives would arrive during the day.

PLAN FOR GERMANY

Mr. Cordell Hull, United States Secretary of State, said yesterday in Washington that the appropriate authority among the Allies was making excellent progress in the completion of plans for the control of Germany the moment the enemy begins surrendering, and on other matters. He declined to make a specific statement as to whether the end of the war in Europe would open a period of armistice, as after the last war.

County Management Act May Be Issue at Next Election

REPRESENTATIVES of all political parties deplored the passing of the County Management Act at the annual conference of the Association of Municipal Authorities of Ireland, which was resumed in the Dublin City Hall yesterday. Delegates urged that the Act should be made the issue at the next general election.

The Mayor of Sligo, Alderman Michael Hughes, said that at no time had the people given their representatives in the Dail the right to pass this measure. Certainly, the people never had in their minds the idea of handing over their liberties.

Mr. John O'Leary, T.D. (Enniscorthy) advocated leaving the counties to the Managers altogether, because the people were losing faith in the Councils' representatives, who were of no further service to them under the Act.

At the outset, Alderman Corish, T.D. (Wexford), President of the Association, as a member of the deputation that waited on the Minister, said that the idea was to get the Minister to scrap the County Management Act, but the Minister said that this was impossible. The deputation indicated the various objections to the Act, and the Minister expressed his willingness to consider any representations made. It was now clear from the letter of the Minister's Secretary that the Minister wanted them to accept the Act. He (the speaker) thought that if they started tinkering with the situation now it would be tantamount to acceptance of the Act.

The Conference eventually decided not to submit proposals to the Government for amending the Act.

The Conference passed a resolution urging that legislation, empowering local authorities to provide pensions for workmen on the same terms as for officials, be brought in by the appropriate Government department.

WILL TEMAIR COMPLETE DOUBLE AT CURRAGH?

THERE should be plenty of animation attached to to-day's programme at the Curragh, with the time-honoured Anglesey Stakes and four very open handicaps down for decision. Temair has been declared for both the Angleseys and the Lumville Handicap, and, if held in reserve for the latter engagement, the filly should score again, despite a penalty which she picked up here at the last meeting.

Seraglio is likely to be the chief danger to Mr. Joseph McGrath's smart colt, Mafosta, in the Anglesey Stakes.

Endless is so consistent that he may successfully defy virtual top weight in the Turf Club Handicap, in which, however, preference is given to Taffytrap, Priorate and the bottom weight, Hello Peter. Choice is made of Taffytrap.

Biggest field of the day will be for the J. T. Rogers Memorial Gold Cup. It may be won by High Spirits, who has speed, and will be ideally suited by the distance. Selections:—

5,800 gns. Paid for Filly By Solario

IN anticipation of an early end to the war and a return to a fuller season of flat-racing next year, bloodstock buyers spent £96,778 10s. 0d. at the yearling sales at Newmarket yesterday. Almost every lot which showed promise of being able to race evoked keen competition and four-figure sales were frequent. Yesterday's catalogue was, however, only a "curtain-raiser" to what will almost certainly be a record war-time sale to-day, when the best studs in Great Britain and Eire offer their choicest products.

The total aggregate for yesterday's sale was 92,170 guineas for 123 lots sold. The average price of 749 guineas for the yearlings sold is a war-time record, the previous best being 732 guineas at the September Sales last year.

The highest price of the day was 5,800 guineas paid by Major R. Warden, acting for a patron of the Hon. G. Lambton's stable, for Mr. E. Esmond's filly by Solario out of Silver Fox II.

King George, on whose behalf few purchases have been made at public auction, became the owner of a well-bred filly by Turkhan, out of Terre Rose, for which his racing manager, Captain Charles Moore, bid 4,100 gns. She will be a useful acquisition to the Royal Stud, as Turkhan finished second in the Derby and won the St. Leger in 1940, and Terre Rose won the Grand Prix de Deauville and the Grand Prix de Marseille.

Quiet Session In Dublin

CHIEF interest in rather small markets on the Dublin Stock Exchange was centered in Irish Industrials, and quiet support caused prices to harden in many cases. Home Rails again made a dull showing, but cross-Channel securities advised better.

Guinness units hardened to 133/3, but Distillers Ord. shaded off to 100/-. Home Rails were sellers in places, and Gt. Northern Pref. relapsed to 41, while Gt. Southern Pref. dipped to 55½. In Draperies, Crowe Wilson Ord. shed pence at 18/4½, but Ferrier Pollock Pref jumped 1/9 to 96/6.

Carroll Ord. advanced several pence to 36/-, and Capitol Theatre Pref. made headway to 18/-. Clondalkin Paper Ord. recovered to 6/10½, and Findlater Deb. spurted 1/3 to 100/-.

Irish Times 2nd Pref. firmed up to 20/7½, and Solus "B" Ord. to 46/6, but Sunbeam Wolsey Pref drooped to 36/- and Irish Sugar Pref eased to 27/-.

RALLY IN INDUSTRIALS

Gold Shares Up Again

A DISTINCT improvement was seen in Stock Exchange prices in London yesterday. The decline in Industrials was checked, and values staged a good recovery.

Rand Gold Shares made fresh headway, but best prices were not always maintained. African and European touched a new high level.

Bargains marked in Kaffirs fell from 498 to 471. African and European were strongly supported at the outset by Johannesburg, which cabled an initial price of 110s. and later 108s. The London market followed suit, the price touching 5¼ and closing at 5 7/16.

Buyers on this side took Lydenburg in hand (these shares are not quoted in Johannesburg), and after gaining 1/16 at £3, only 1/16 short of their record price, left off ⅛ to the good at 2 15/16.

WEST WITS STRONG

Western Holdings put on 1/16 at 2 9/16 and South African Townships were rather buyers at 28/-. The proposed formation of an Orange Free State subsidiary to take over Anglo-Americans and S.A. Townships O.F.S. interests was not known in business hours.

It is a move which helps to explain the recent strength of O.F.S. shares, as it should mean that there is little prospect of Anglo-Americans and S.A. Townships holdings in O.F.S. companies coming on the market.

West Wits. were 1/16 to the good at 14 5/16, after 14⅜ on strong Johannesburg support. A fall of 1/16 to 2 1/16 in Venterspost was produced by sales, accompanied by a rumour casting doubts on the continuity of recently reported rich developments, and this affected Libanon to the extent of 6d. at 27/3.

The rise in Randfontein made further progress on Johannesburg support, the shares touching 1⅝ and closing at 1 9/16, a gain of 1/16. There was talk of better developments in the southern portion of the property.

Dominion Reefs were 3d. better at 5/10½ on the announcement of a maiden dividend of 5 p.c.

EQUITIES RISE

Buyers were attracted to Industrials by the lower levels registered of late, and selling pressure was less pronounced. The buying was not on large lines, and it is difficult to state whether the improvement has come to stay. The experience, however, proves that there is resistance in markets to any particular slide in prices.

The leading Tobaccos rallied well, while improvements were recorded in various other popular Equities. Steel shares also showed small gains.

Harland and Wolff capital reorganisation scheme pleased dealers, and both classes finished at 16/3, after 16/6. The market estimated that the Cumulative New Pref. should be well covered and that the hoped-for payment of a larger Ord. dividend should largely compensate for the small priority dividend.

British Funds remained a good market, and Home Rails were better, with a recovery in L.M.S. Ord. to 28⅝. Little interest was taken in Oils.

It is evident that the directors of Initial Services, Ltd., feel confident regarding the future; for, despite a small reduction in profits, the dividend is increased from 22½ p.c. to 25 p.c. by a final of 15 p.c. (against 14 1-6 p.c.). Aggregate profits of the company and its subsidiaries amounted to £384,529 (against £407,433). The company, which has an issued capital of £1,310,800, specialises in the supply to business houses of tea service and toilet requisites, and towels, soap, etc. It also manufactures carrier tricycles, which are let on hire. In the past ten years its Ord. capital has been increased from £225,000 to its present level of £1,810,000 in 5/- shares (quoted at 29/-).

CALICO PROFITS

Nothing appears in the full report and accounts of the Calico Printers' Association, Ltd., to illuminate the position regarding taxation. The profit of £303,862 was struck after providing for the estimated liability for the year's taxation, less an amount brought to credit in respect of tax overprovided in previous years. The amount of the tax, or of this credit, are nowhere stated, although their importance may be judged from the fact that the profit compared with only £134,027 in the previous year, after providing an additional £101,916 for maintenance, etc. Possibly the chairman will explain the position at the annual meeting on September 20th.

As previously stated, two years' arrears of 5 p.c. Pref dividend are to be paid, bringing payment up to June 30th, 1942. A study of the balance sheet suggests that even more might have been done, for current assets, at over £6,800,000, exceed current liabilities by over 3½ millions.

Gold Mining Tax Causes Anxiety

The full report of the Johannesburg Consolidated Investment Company for the year to June 30th last draws attention to the heavy direct and indirect taxation being borne by the gold mining industry in South Africa. This burden, together with the rising level of costs, it is stated, gives cause for anxiety regarding the future of the industry, and the hope is expressed that some measure of relief will be granted at an early date.

Gross income for 1943-44 amounts to £1,186,332 (against £1,134,818). Taxation is up from £234,811 to £332,719, but the transfer to reserve is maintained at £250,000. With the dividend again at 15 p.c., the carry forward at £248,038 compares with £258,569 brought in.

The investigation of certain areas in the Orange Free State is being carried out by Free State Development and Investment Corporation, which was formed for that purpose in February, 1941. The new company is under the technical control of "Johnnies," which has a substantial holding of its shares. Arrangements for the joint boring and exchange of information have been made with the concerns interested in properties in the Free State.

Co. Wicklow Secretary Appointed

Wicklow County Council, having adjourned the appointment of Mr. Kevin J. Brangan as secretary, as recommended by the Local Appointments Commission, was told by Mr. P. T. Healy, County Manager, that he had received a letter from the Local Government Department stating that, unless the appointment was made and the Department notified, mandamus proceedings would be taken against the local authority, and he would be liable for costs.

Mr. Healy added that he had replied that he completely disagreed with the Council, and would see that Mr. Brangan was properly appointed to the position. In the circumstances he had to make the appointment.

Overcharging For Sugar and Flour

"I CHARGED him ½d. extra a lb. on sugar to discourage credit," said Peter Folan, manager of a shop at Lettermore, Co. Galway, at the Special Criminal Court in Dublin yesterday, when he appeared with Richard H. O'Toole, the owner of the shop, and Thomas Walsh, an assistant, charged with over 100 offences against the Price Control Regulations.

The hearing had been adjourned from Tuesday, and was again adjourned until to-day.

O'Toole and Folan were found guilty on charges of overcharging when selling sugar by retail, the total amount of the overcharges being £2 0/11½. They were also found guilty of overcharging 3/- on the wholesale price of two cwts. at £4 7/-, the controlled price of which was 42/- per cwt.

Mr. G. D. Murnaghan, S.C., who, with Mr. A. O Cuiv (instructed by Mr. R. P. Humphries, Chief State Solicitor's Office), prosecuted, handed in a schedule showing 12 instances of overcharging sugar by wholesale and 52 instances of overcharging by retail, and asked that these be taken into account.

O'Toole was also found guilty on two charges of overcharging in the sale of one cwt. of flour, and Folan guilty to aiding and abetting.

Mr. Sean McBride, S.C., who, with Mr. P. O'Malley (instructed by Messrs. J. C. Conroy and Sons), defended, submitted that an extra 1/- was to cover the cost of cartage, and that, taking into account the discounts given, the consumer was actually only paying the controlled price, and probably less than that.

In two charges against O'Toole and Folan in respect to alleged overcharging in oatmeal sales, an official of the Department said that from the records of the firm it was shown that 7/- was charged for one stone of oatmeal when the controlled price was 5/4 per stone. In another instance 13/- was charged for two stone.

O'Toole and Folan were also found guilty on these charges, and Mr. Murnaghan handed in two schedules which showed 13 distinct instances of overcharging for oatmeal.

A direction in favour of both accused men was given in respect of two charges of overcharging for kerosene.

Steward Fined £1,800

A fine of £1,800 was imposed, in Dublin District Court yesterday, on Harry Hull, ship's steward, Seapoint avenue, Blackrock, for harbouring 50lb. of saccharine, contrary to Customs regulations.

A Customs officer stated that the recent market price of saccharine was £12 10s. a lb. The accused man had pleaded guilty.

Co. Mayo Fire Inquest

Mr. J. J. Walsh, solicitor, Coroner for East Mayo, opened and, at the request of the jury, again adjourned the inquest on the eight victims of the Kiltimagh fire tragedy. The jury expressed the opinion that some responsible officials should be present to give evidence regarding the alleged inefficiency of the water supply, after a witness had said that, in his opinion, the bodies could probably have been recovered before they were completely burned had the water supply been adequate.

Margaret Byrne, the only adult survivor, said she was aroused about daybreak by a man's voice crying: "Get up; the place is on fire." He handed her the infant Patrick. She broke a pane of glass and threw the baby out. She tried to get back to the other children, but the room was filled with smoke and the landing was blazing. She then jumped through the window.

The fire occurred in the licensed premises of James Ruane, Kiltimagh, on May 18th. Those burned to death were James Ruane and his wife, with their three children—Maura (6), Thomas (7), and Seamus (5)—Kathleen King, Rathdowney; Kathleen Murtagh, Castleroyan, Kiltimagh, and Michael Stritch, Fermoy (employees).

Bray Loan Proposal

Speaking on the redemption and consolidation of Bray Urban Council's outstanding loans on Tuesday, Mr. P. J. Healy, County Manager, said that if he could borrow £250,000 at 3½ per cent. he could reduce the rates of the town by about 3s. in the £. He had seen two directors of the Council's treasurer on the matter and they informed him that it was not a banking proposition. The only other course open to the Council was to bring pressure upon the Government to float a loan at 3½ per cent for the redemption and consolidation of their outstanding loans. However, he undertook to put a fresh proposal before the Council's treasurer.

The terms are understood in effect to constitute peace, with a few details which will be left for settlement at a general peace conference at some future date.

TOURIST MYSTERIES

Arriving recently at Collinstown Airport, an American visitor expressed his surprise that Ireland should be responsible for what he described as "one of the world's finest and best equipped air stations." It was, he said, a model of design and efficiency, which well might be copied by aircraft organisations in other parts of the world. Next day the same man, en route to his destination in a midland county, discovered travel conditions which "would not be tolerated by the people of the most primitive of America's backwoods settlements." Compelled to seek information and shelter in the G.S.R. Company's so-called waiting rooms at Aston's quay, and then to take his stand for more than an hour in a kerbside queue of weary and disconsolate travellers, that American visitor had little that was pleasant to say about the organisers of Irish travel agencies. Yet he was merely one of many thousands of tourists and citizens who have been forced to submit to conditions that cannot be justified by any plea of emergency difficulties. For several years effective, even if transitional, remedies have lain ready to the hands of the tourist and travel hierarchs who have talked so much about tourist development, and have done so little to provide a remedy for evils that are capable of immediate application. In the absence of any indication that steps are being taken to deal with the discreditable conditions which prevail more especially in the vicinity of Aston's quay, it now becomes necessary to inquire who, if anybody, is mainly responsible for their continuance? Primarily, of course, the responsibility rests with the Minister for Industry and Commerce and his lieutenants—the chairman of the G.S.R. Company, as travel organiser, and the chairman of that mysterious "fifth wheel" in the coach of tourist organisation—the official Irish Tourist Board. If Mr. A. P. Reynolds, as virtual dictator of transport, and Mr. J. P. O'Brien, as chief official supervisor of tourist interests, had found time to spend even a quarter of an hour in a quayside queue, there can be little doubt that thousands of visitors would have left Dublin with a very different story to tell their friends about tourist facilities in the twenty-six counties.

There also is a semi-official body—the Irish Tourist Association—whose relation to the official Tourist Board seems to require clarification. Merely pausing to inquire whether that body of popularly-elected representatives ever felt it necessary to direct official attention to the chaotic conditions at Aston's quay and elsewhere, we pass to consider the part which Dublin Corporation and its City Manager might, and ought to, have played in efforts to preserve the city's position as the centre and focal point of Irish tourist activities. Here, again, we must record a deplorable display of indifference—if not of actual obstruction. As the city's planning authority, the Corporation three years ago designated a site for a central 'bus station. Having done so, the Municipal Council seemed to regard all other transport troubles—whether those of citizens or visitors—as matters for the attention of other authorities. Until January of last year—when Alderman Alfred Byrne induced the Municipal Council to draw the G.S.R.'s attention to the need of reasonable shelter and sanitary accommodation—the Corporation treated traffic problems as matters of small civic consequence. In response, the railway company said that "proper facilities had been under consideration for some considerable time"—but that, "in prevailing conditions, it is felt that a definite decision on the matter must necessarily be postponed." Having "noted" the G.S.R.'s letter in May of last year, the Corporation has been satisfied to remain a silent witness to conditions which are utterly discreditable to all concerned with Dublin's public health and to traffic organisation. Doubtless, it will be pleaded that the Municipal Council has no direct concern with tourist problems and that its members have done everything in their power to set other bodies in motion; but it is well to remember that the need to provide shelter for 'bus passengers is not by any means confined to tourist interests. About two years ago it was announced that the City Manager and the D.U.T.C. had reached an agreement under which shelters soon would be provided for travellers within the city area. Now, on the verge of a winter that may prove to be unusually severe, the promise yet remains to be fulfilled. Can the Corporation, as the city's public health authority, disclaim responsibility for consequent dangers to the lives of citizens? Is it not abundantly clear that the time is far overdue when the Corporation, acting in concert with transport and tourist agencies, should address itself seriously to the immediate solution of these serious problems. Too many cooks have been allowed to compound a highly-disagreeable kind of transport broth. Now the pot is ready to boil over. Some of its ingredients are positively harmful. They threaten to poison many of the sources of our industrial and civic life.

Houses Wanted

According to the interim report of Northern Ireland's Planning Advisory Board, Belfast stands in need of 23,591 new houses. That is a high figure for a city which, with some pretence to reason, always has regarded itself as tolerably well-housed; and is explained, of course, by the bombings. We may hope that, when the Board's plans come to be translated into practice, the mistakes of the past will be rectified. In comparison with its neighbour, Dublin, Belfast is slumless; but far too many of its houses belong to the squalid, Victorian order which partakes of many of the vices of the Dublin slum. If there are few or no five-storey tenements, packed to overflowing, there are, in place of them, whole areas of tiny, gardenless houses of the "back-to-back" variety that furnishes so little opportunity for the conduct of a satisfactory urban life. Is it too much to hope that the rebuilders of Belfast will set less store upon land values and more upon the re-planning of the city in accordance with the liberal conceptions of modern design? This is the first occasion on which Belfast has had a genuine chance to expand itself, and to make a break with its somewhat crabbed traditions of "lay-out." Twenty-three thousand houses provide no small problem; and the manner in which it is tackled will be the essential pointer to the city's advancement. Dublin will watch the experiment with sympathetic interest. It was estimated before the war that 30,000 dwellings were needed for the proper re-housing of Dublin—where the complication of bombing damage has been negligible. Which city will set a headline to the other? We continue to maintain that slum clearance — a process suspended by the war—is among the chief of the Government's post-war problems, and must be tackled at the earliest possible moment. Any delay will be fatal. Talk, on the one hand, and parsimony, on the other, will mean the deferment of action until another "slump," or even another war, imposes another temporary close on housing activities. It will be a poor commentary on Dublin's civic conscience if those 30,000 houses are not available at least as early as Belfast's 23,000.

ISOLATION HUTS FOR "T.B." PATIENTS

The latest phase of the anti-tuberculosis campaign of the Irish Red Cross is the provision of small huts eight feet long and six feet wide, to isolate a patient at his own home. There is a considerable demand for them, and the Red Cross have twenty under construction. The first one has just been issued to a Dublin patient.

Cruiskeen Lawn

By Myles na gCopaleen

YOU have probably often muttered, remembering some particularly ludicrous insertion in the papers—"Funny thing Myles didn't get on to that"—little dreaming that the paragraph in question had been cut out by me and stored away (nay, at home) for use in my own good time.

Under the heading of HOLD-UP IN PUBLICATION OF DICTIONARY both you and I had some sad things to read recently about our friends the Irish Academy of Letters. For myself I may add that I haven't had such a good laugh for years. "The Academy's funds," the note said, "are now exhausted, and the work of compiling the dictionary cannot be carried on without more money . . . ."

Readers who, like myself, remember the circumstances under which this 'Academy' was founded will wonder why the scholarly, unwordly (stet!) types composing it have not thought of mentioning their want to . . . . to . . . , Associated Newspapers, Ltd.

It is a good one all right, this dictionary. Hear the terms of reverence:

"Their original intention was to produce a work, biographical, bibliographical and critical, which should (?) include every Irish writer who had published a book in English, and this was afterwards extended to include the relatively small number of such writers in Irish. . . ."

Poor human folly—is there anny end to it . . . . at all? (What do I mean 'human'—who ever heard of a foolish animal?) And what breed of mysterious bilingual acrobats is adumbrated in that final reference? First you have 'every writer who had published a book in English' and then 'such writers in Irish.' I suppose it can be done but not surprising that those who have published a book in English in Irish add up to 'a relatively small number.'

What is the meaning of this nonsense? Is there no limit to silliness and self-consciousness in this land? A catalogue of Irish writers with notes saying whether they took exhibitions in the Intermediate, whether they were born, the 'books' they wrote? Who has expressed a desire for such a lexicon, what 'want' is it aimed to satisfy? Is it for the public, for humanity, for posterity, for culture, for the Institute of Technology, Boston, Mass.?

Shame? Reticence? Alas, we know them not. The arts, excepting certain primitive manifestations of ornament and cooperage, are unknown in Ireland, yet this 'writing' has flourished to an extent that makes necessary a 'dictionary.' Writing, unless co-existing with the great arts of music, painting and sculpture in a climate where such pursuits are endemic, is folly, vanity, confusion, it is dull, it is cloddish, it is the recreation of slaves. The evil pythonic intellect coiled, hot, clammy and insanitary in the dark, dirty recesses of the brain, becomes an indoor athlete and where it flourishes all healthy life decays. Have you ever liked a clever person, gentile (stet) reader? Is not the cultivation of the mind the worst form of plebeian pride and to what can it lead but ugliness?

More I will not say on this subject, for it is not savoury and in any case I am getting very tired indeed of you Irish. For myself, I note from the report that the 'dictionary' just managed to get as far as "Cooper, Bryan Ricco" and just stopped there. Deliberate, of course—it is the sort of thing I have to put up with. The next entry is "Copaleen, Myles na g." It would never do, of course, to go as far as that. Quite too embarrassing. The issue would then be open, my traducers, enemies, persecutors would have to emerge from hiding, at last it would be them or me.

Foreigners, travelling Ireland, often wonder why there are so many hedges and stone walls. I never did and I am here six years.

SIR W. BEVERIDGE AS LIBERAL M.P.

The Executive Committee of Berwick Division Liberal Association yesterday invited Sir William Beveridge to address a meeting of the association with a view to his possible adoption as Liberal candidate for the division, where a by-election has been created by the death of Captain George Grey.

"If I get into Parliament," Sir William told a Press Association Lobby Correspondent, "it will not be as a professor or an economist, or simply as the advocate of my Freedom from Want plan. What I have been writing and thinking about most of late has been world organisation for peace."

THE ABBEY THEATRE

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—In a recent letter to your paper Mr. P. S. O'Hegarty rushes somewhat hysterically to the defence of the Abbey Theatre. The actors, the playwrights and the various members of the public who have expressed their dissatisfaction are all wrong, it seems, and the present agitation is nothing more than a thinly-disguised conspiracy to defeat the efforts of those who wish to revive the Irish language. I shall not undertake the weary task of correcting Mr. O'Hegarty's many mis-statements, but I will try patiently to reiterate some of the hard, unpleasant facts which have caused the present widespread dissatisfaction and which Mr. O'Hegarty has either misrepresented or ignored.

Firstly, the players. To the older players, who have served the theatre for periods of from fifteen to twenty-five years, the Abbey offers a bare subsistence. To the younger players, the Abbey does not even offer this, by which I mean that they receive less money than the average Dublin bus conductor or Corporation street worker. This is a shameful fact, which the directors of the theatre have not attempted to deny, and some of these unfortunate actors have been obliged to leave the Abbey and try to earn their livings elsewhere. What is the extent of Mr. O'Hegarty's sympathy? "Well," he says, "they will simply leave room for other talent." Later he says: "Many an indignant performer is receiving x pounds per week who is really only worth half that sum, if anything at all." Now surely, if there is such an abundance of acting talent as Mr. O'Hegarty suggests, then the directors, if they present performers who are worth little or nothing at all, are cheating the public and taking money under false pretences? The truth is that some of these grossly underpaid younger actors are of established reputation and are cast in leading parts. Perhaps, if Mr. O'Hegarty were to give up his present lucrative position in the Post Office and take a job in the theatre, he would stop writing such nonsense. Another complaint is that preference is given to Irish-speaking players, irrespective of acting ability. Mr. O'Hegarty says there is no truth in the suggestion that a knowledge of Irish is likely to unfit anybody for acting. I, naturally, agree, and I cannot recall that such a ridiculous suggestion was made. The complaint against the directors is that they seem to believe that a knowledge of Irish is sufficient to fit an actor for important parts in English plays, even when his knowledge of acting is negligible. As a result of this encouragement of mediocrity and refusal to provide the players with the means to live in moderate decency, there will be remarkably few actors to fill the gaps when the older players go, and, of those who are available, their knowledge of Irish will hardly compensate the public for the poor quality of their acting. The talented younger players, whether English-speaking or bi-lingual, will have been driven elsewhere.

Now about Abbey plays. Mr. O'Hegarty mentions the dearth of good plays in the past few years, but refuses to admit that the directors might be in some way to blame. He mentions the competition which produced "Mount Prospect," but omits to add the significant fact that the directors did not give first place to this play, but shared the prize between it and another play, a stage-Irish farce, which, I observe, they have not since revived. In the past few years the directors have accepted farce after farce, each one poorer than the last, until now they are not even financially successful, and the directors are deprived of even this shameful excuse for presenting them. At the same time, Mr. O'Hegarty says they were right in rejecting "White Steed," and would doubtless agree that they were also right in rejecting recently-submitted plays by Teresa Deevy and Mervyn Wall, two of our most interesting experimental playwrights. This seems to be a case of heads I win, tails you lose. When the directors accept bad plays, Mr. O'Hegarty says they simply put them on to encourage the playwright; when they reject good plays he says they rejected them because they were not masterpieces. Where are the masterpieces? he cries with fine abandon, as though anyone had been foolish enough to suggest that the Abbey was rejecting masterpieces every day of the week. So long as there are no masterpieces rejected, it apparently does not matter that the directors are withholding plays that the public has a right to see, and presenting instead a succession of dreary farces which fail even to amuse. But stay. Perhaps I do the directors an injustice. Did they not recently present us with a very serious play by a young Pole? It was not successful, of course, but is not it nice to think that the directors of our national theatre are so broad-minded as to include, as part of their policy, the encouragement of young Polish playwrights?

In citing the qualifications of the directors, Mr. O'Hegarty says "Mr. Blythe and Mr. Hayes have learned about plays where most people do—by years and years of attendance at theatres, by reading and discussion." I will make no comment on this statement, except to say that if it be true, then, judging by the prevailing discontent, there seem to be a lot of people who would advise all aspiring directors to keep away from theatres and to avoid like the plague all reading and discussion.

Mr. O'Hegarty agrees that the Abbey is not as good as it was, but he ascribes the decline to all sorts of wonderful reasons, including "the growth of luxury and ease," no less. At the Abbey? Ye Gods! The obvious reason for the decline is that the present directors, with one exception, are not men of the theatre, in spite of all their "years and years of attendance." They are consequently incapable of inspiring confidence or enthusiasm or giving direction to young playwrights, as was done so successfully by their predecessors: in fact, they represent the very elements of caution, incompetence and complacency which it is a writer's instinct to attack. Is it surprising, then, that fewer and fewer good plays are being written?

A few more letters like the last, Mr. O'Hegarty, and you'll be filling one of those vacant places on the Board.—Yours, etc.,

GERARD HEALY.

77 Ashfield road, Ranelagh, September 12th, 1944.

AN IRISHMAN'S DIARY

Aachen

THE city of Aachen (otherwise Aix-la-Chapelle), near which the Anglo-American forces are fighting, has had an eventful history. It was the site of Roman baths in the first century, the birthplace of Charlemagne, and his northern capital. He founded the famous cathedral, and built a palace on the site now occupied by the 14th century town hall, in one room of which 32 German rulers were crowned.

To thousands of people, however, Aachen is better known as the first town inside the German frontier. I remember the Customs examination in a long white-washed room, presided over by a portrait of Herr Hitler; the black-uniformed guards on the platform, each with his gun at his hip; the rush and bustle, and the many tongues that made London, only a few hours away, as remote as another world.

Here, too, on the way out, the same Customs officers used to dig out one's bag to see that no cameras or such things, bought with cheap tourists' marks, were concealed therein. And were you taking any currency out of the country? I was able to answer that one with a clear conscience. A final shopping trip in Cologne had left me with exactly five pfennigs (about 2d.) of German money.

A Visitor from Africa

Mr. William ("Billy") Merrigan, formerly well-known in Dublin accountancy circles, has just returned to Eire from the West African Gold Coast, where he has been working for the last few years. As assistant manager of the Pretsia Rubber Plantation, and also of the Abreoo Rubber Estates, he has been kept very busy supervising the work of thousands of natives, who are not the easiest workers in the world to control.

The natives merely work when they feel like it, so that the company has no alternative but to sign on many hundreds more than are normally required, hoping that a necessary proportion will attend for work.

Most of the natives are engaged as tappers, and they work for about six hours at a stretch. Mr. Merrigan showed me a West African currency 10s. note, which natives refuse to accept as payment of wages, which amount to 1s. 9d. a day. Hard cash or nothing seems to sum up the situation in the Gold Coast.

Despite travel complications, Mr. Merrigan will shortly return to Africa, where there are great opportunities for the right type of Irishmen.

Real Life Thrillers

Every writer of detective fiction ought to read a book called "Homicidal Investigation," published in America lately by Dr. Le Moyne Snyder, of Michigan State Police. Readers of such literature ought, perhaps, to avoid it, if they want to keep their illusions.

One point that he makes, however, will not surprise them. The first 15 minutes are the most vital in the investigation of a case. Nothing must be moved when the body is found, and until photographs, measurements and full notes have been taken.

The weapon that causes most violent deaths in the United States is not the revolver or pistol, as the films might seem to indicate; it is the shot-gun that stands behind almost every farmhouse door. Arsenic and strychnine are poisons frequently used, but dangerous to a murderer, as they can be detected for a very long time—sometimes as much as three months—after death.

Third Time Lucky

Is this too morbid? If not, here are some more ghastly details. Suicide by shooting is not usually successful at the first attempt; a person often misses with his first two or three shots, and may live for days even after hitting himself in the head.

A shot in the heart does not, contrary to the usual belief, kill instantly. A policeman who had been shot in the heart fired six shots as his assailant, and walked across the street to his car, before he collapsed and died.

Finally, Dr. Snyder regards as complete fallacies the popular notions that a murderer always returns to the scene of his crime, that quicklime will obliterate a corpse, and that dead men tell no tales. He ought to know.

Hardy Ancients

I had a look the other day at a treatise published in 1744 under the rather burdensome title of "The Ancient and Present State of the County of Down." The unknown author gives some rather Pepysian sketches of the people living then in that part of Ireland. Among them was a remarkable character, called John Maxwell, who, the author asserts, rode, when in his 87th year, from Dublin to his own house in Comber, County Down, in one day—a distance of 84 miles!

Another sprightly old boy was the centenarian, Patrick Lowry, of Clogher, who always walked to church and market every week, a distance of "a large mile," and never suffered from any disorder except the smallpox; that great scourge of the century.

Rostrevor also boasted a centenarian, a Mr. Cummings, who, the writer says, married a second or third wife after he was 90!

A third centenarian, Alice Sale, is described as having "grown double and shrivelled, being worn to a grasshopper." The writer says of her that she "would sit in the chimney corner on a little straw and exercise her rock (distaff) and spindle to the last, when she seemed to die of mere age." The italics are definitely mine.

Kiss for the Bench

Recently it was necessary to examine a female deaf mute in a district court. The examination was long, for a woman interpreter with a knowledge of the deaf and dumb alphabet, and an ingenious way of conveying her meaning by other demonstrations, had to put questions by means of the sign language, read the responses, and tell the Court the answers. The rapidity of the hand movement at times seemed to lead to a little confusion on some of the niceties of the case, and at the end of the ordeal the girl in the witness-box gave an impression of weariness.

But when it was indicated to her that all was over she brightened up, and, leaving the box, she made her last sign; she kissed her hand to the district justice. The district justice did not return the salute, but he appeared to appreciate the humour of it.

PRO-QUIDNUNC.

ART EXHIBITION IN DUBLIN

THE place of honour in this year's Living Art Exhibition at the National College, Kildare street, has been rightly allotted to the late Mainie Jellett's big decorative canvas, "Homage to Fra Angelico," which has not been seen in public for a very long time, for the gifted painter and teacher was the original inspiration of the phase of the modern art movement that culminated in the organisation of the first of these exhibitions last year. Irish artists and art lovers will be happy to be thus reminded of their obligation to her by this impressively successful endeavour to find, through analysis of traditional forms, a new yet self-evidently valid approach to the achievement of the religious temper in art.

And how Mainie Jellett would rejoice to see that the deservedly great success of last year's exhibition, in which, even on her deathbed, she took a brave and absorbed interest, has obviously stirred her fellow-artists of the liberation movement to the ambition to do better still! Thus, Ralph Cusack and Francis G. Callaghan appear to better advantage here than ever before. And the same may be said of E. A. M'Guire, Louis Le Brocquy, Jack P. Hanlon, Raymond Magrath, Richard Kennedy, Norah McGuinness, Joan Jameson, Phyllis Hayward and Harriet Kirkwood, all of whose works show increased invention and spirit.

The Big Three of the exhibition are, however, Mr. Yeats, Mrs. Henry and Miss Hone, each a wholly authentic and masterly artist, each markedly different from the others, and each represented here by choice and richly characteristic paintings. (Nor should Miss Hone's beautiful group of stained glass exhibits in another room be missed.)

Mention should be made of some brilliant colour studies by May Guinness, and there is stylish portraiture by Frances Kelly. But to enumerate half, or even a quarter of the artists included in the exhibition, or to discuss their 150-odd works in detail, is obviously impossible. It is worth noting, however, that though there are some excellent exhibits by well-known London "avant-garde" artists like Henry Moore, Graham Sutherland, Francis Hodgkins and John Piper, they are not more searching or of more lively interest than those by our own artists.

It is worth noting, too, that young Belfast, in the works of Dan O'Neill and Gerard Dillon, makes its effect; that Waterford, in the person of Robert Burke, sends one of the finest landscape studies in the exhibition; and that young Cork, meaning in particular that interesting experimentalist, Diarmuid O'Callaghan, is, disappointingly, not represented at all.

OBITUARY

MR. HEATH ROBINSON

Mr. William Heath Robinson, the artist-humorist, died at his home in Highgate yesterday, aged 72. He had been ill for several months with heart trouble. Heath Robinson's fame lay chiefly in his humorous drawings of elaborate machinery tied up with string. After leaving the school he painted landscapes. He once worked on the staff of Penny Illustrated, and while there married the editor's daughter, Miss Josephine Latey. As a serious artist he illustrated Hans Andersen, Rabelais, Poë, "A Midsummer Night's Dream," "Twelfth Night," "Don Quixote," "The Water Babies" and "The Arabian Nights."

DR. G. FITZ-GERALD

The death has occurred at Woodstock, West Didsbury, Manchester, of Dr. Gordon William Fitz-Gerald, M.D., O.B.E., at the age of 72. Dr. Fitz-Gerald was Assistant Master of the Rotunda Hospital, 1902-1904. He left Dublin to take up a position in Manchester, where he practised for the greater part of his life. He was an official of the B.M.A. in Manchester, and contributed to medical literature.

COMMANDANT S. BRETT

The death occurred unexpectedly in the Military Hospital, Collins Barracks, Cork, yesterday, of Commandant Sean Brett, Area Officer, L.D.F., Cork City. A native of Waterford, he served in the Army since its inception, and was appointed in charge of the Cork L.D.F. about three years ago. He was aged 47.

FUNERAL

MR. KEVIN O'C. KEARY
